The ASR School Readiness Assessment Model TM

Introduction

Thank you for your interest in the School Readiness Assessment (SRA) model developed by Applied Survey Research (ASR) in 2001. The SRA model is an easy-to-use assessment package of child, parent, and teacher tools that have strong validity, including associations with 3rd grade academic outcomes. This agreement includes use of the Pre-Kindergarten Observation Form (P-KOF) and Parent Information Form (PIF, if selected during purchase). The P-KOF provides an illustrative portrait of children's readiness for school, as well as data related to children's developmental competencies and contextual factors—such as demographic information, well-being, emergent English language proficiency, and special needs designation. The model yields valid, useful data because of the careful controls we have in place for training and data collection. Therefore, the tools within the SRA model are copyrighted and not available for unregulated public use.

Terms of Use

By entering into this agreement, you are requesting access to the SRA model tools for a one-school-year Terms of Use agreement for the P-KOF that will need to be renewed annually. As part of the Terms of Use, you agree to not make any revisions to the forms without ASR's approval, and you agree to not use the P-KOF for diagnostic purposes or to hold children back from kindergarten entry.

The fee for a one-school-year Terms of Use agreement (defined as July 1 to June 30) entitles you to:

- Provision of master forms for duplication and packeting.
- A training for teachers detailing how to implement the assessment.
- Instructions on how to enter data into our data platform.
- Technical assistance to provide guidance on how to manage the assessment, as needed.

Upon purchase of the P-KOF, you will be required to provide an estimate of the number of children who will participate in the assessment. Please note that this estimate will be used for billing purposes. If the actual number of children assessed exceeds the initial estimate, ASR reserves the right to invoice you for the additional assessments provided. Conversely, if the actual number of children assessed is fewer than estimated, no refunds or credits will be issued for unused assessments.
